

Yoga Studio Website - Initial Thoughts

I would like to take the example of a real life site as the idea for my final project. This idea is something that is close to my heart as I created the initial site more than 8 years ago. I am familiar with the needs of the site owner and how they have changed down through the years. I created this site as my first milestone project and I would like to progress it for my final project and add the functionality that was previously just aspirational.

User Stories

Users should have the ability:

- To view information about the studio
- To view information about the classes on offer
- To view information on when classes and workshops are scheduled
- To contact the site owner through a contact form
- To view the location of the studio
- To be able to book and pay for a place on a workshop
- To be able to purchase a gift voucher for a fixed amount on the site
- To be able to purchase a single class pass
- To be able to purchase a class pack of 8 classes
- To read blog posts
- To filter blog posts by category and tag
- To search blog posts
- To comment on blog posts
- Sign up for a newsletter to receive updates on classes and workshops
- View the site from any device
- Set up an account/profile on the site
- Log out of the site
- Change account password
- As a logged in user
 - Purchase a product
 - View My Orders
 - Enter payment and billing details

Other possible user features:

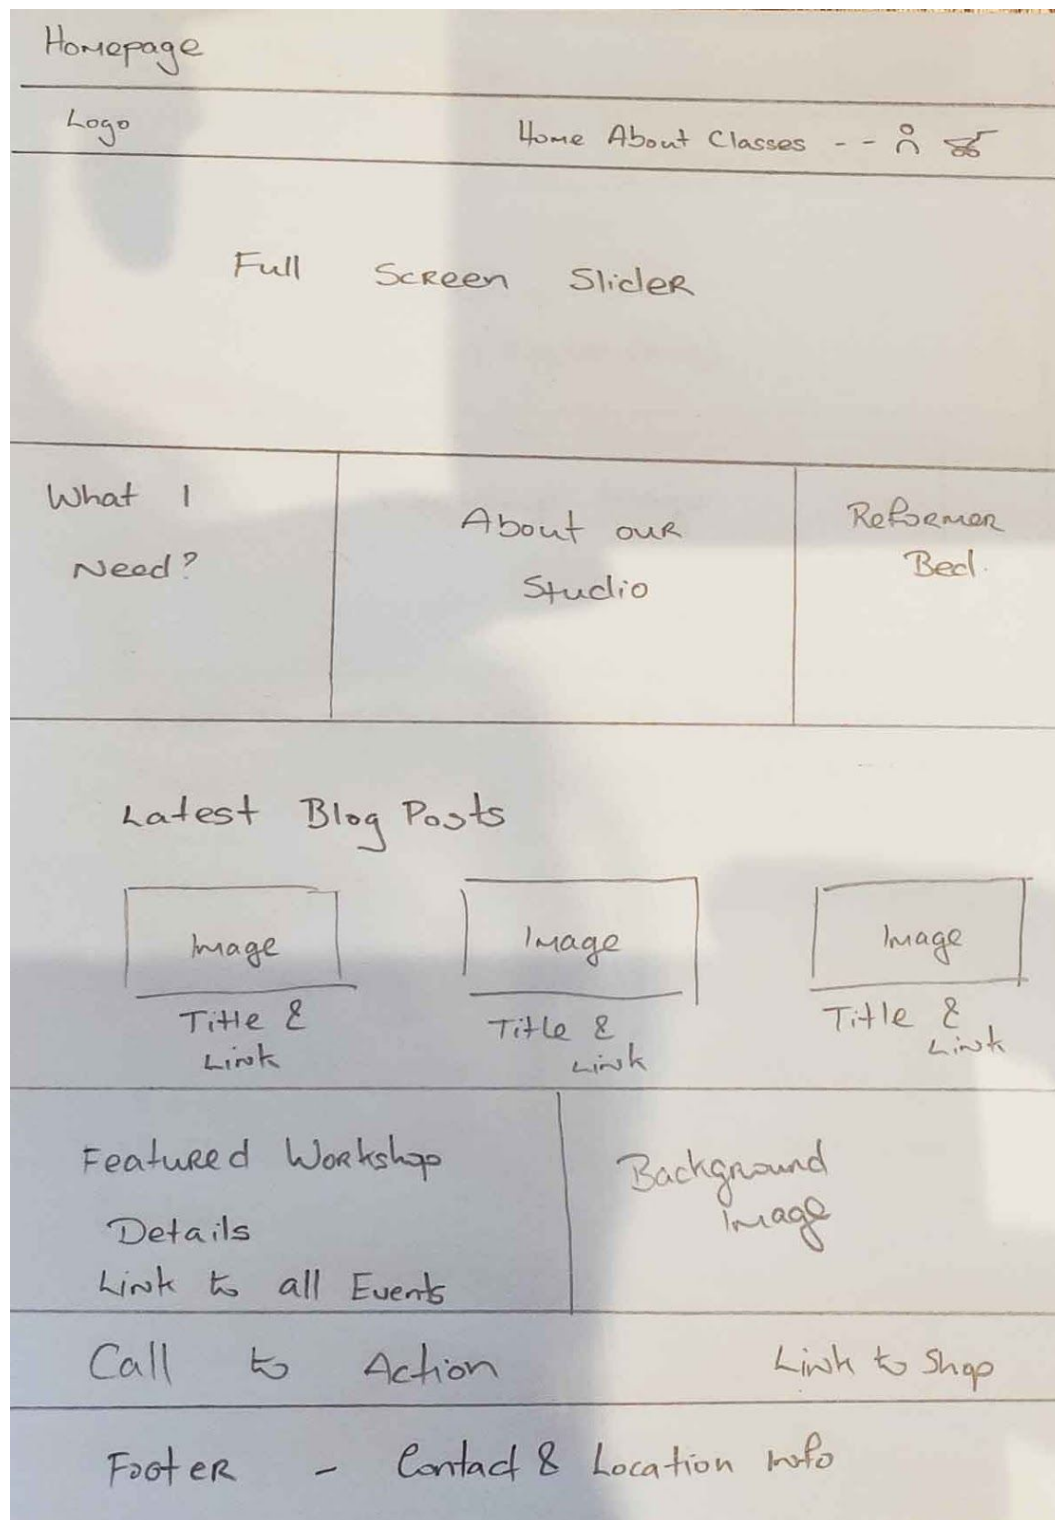

- Sort workshops by month or location

Super User Stories

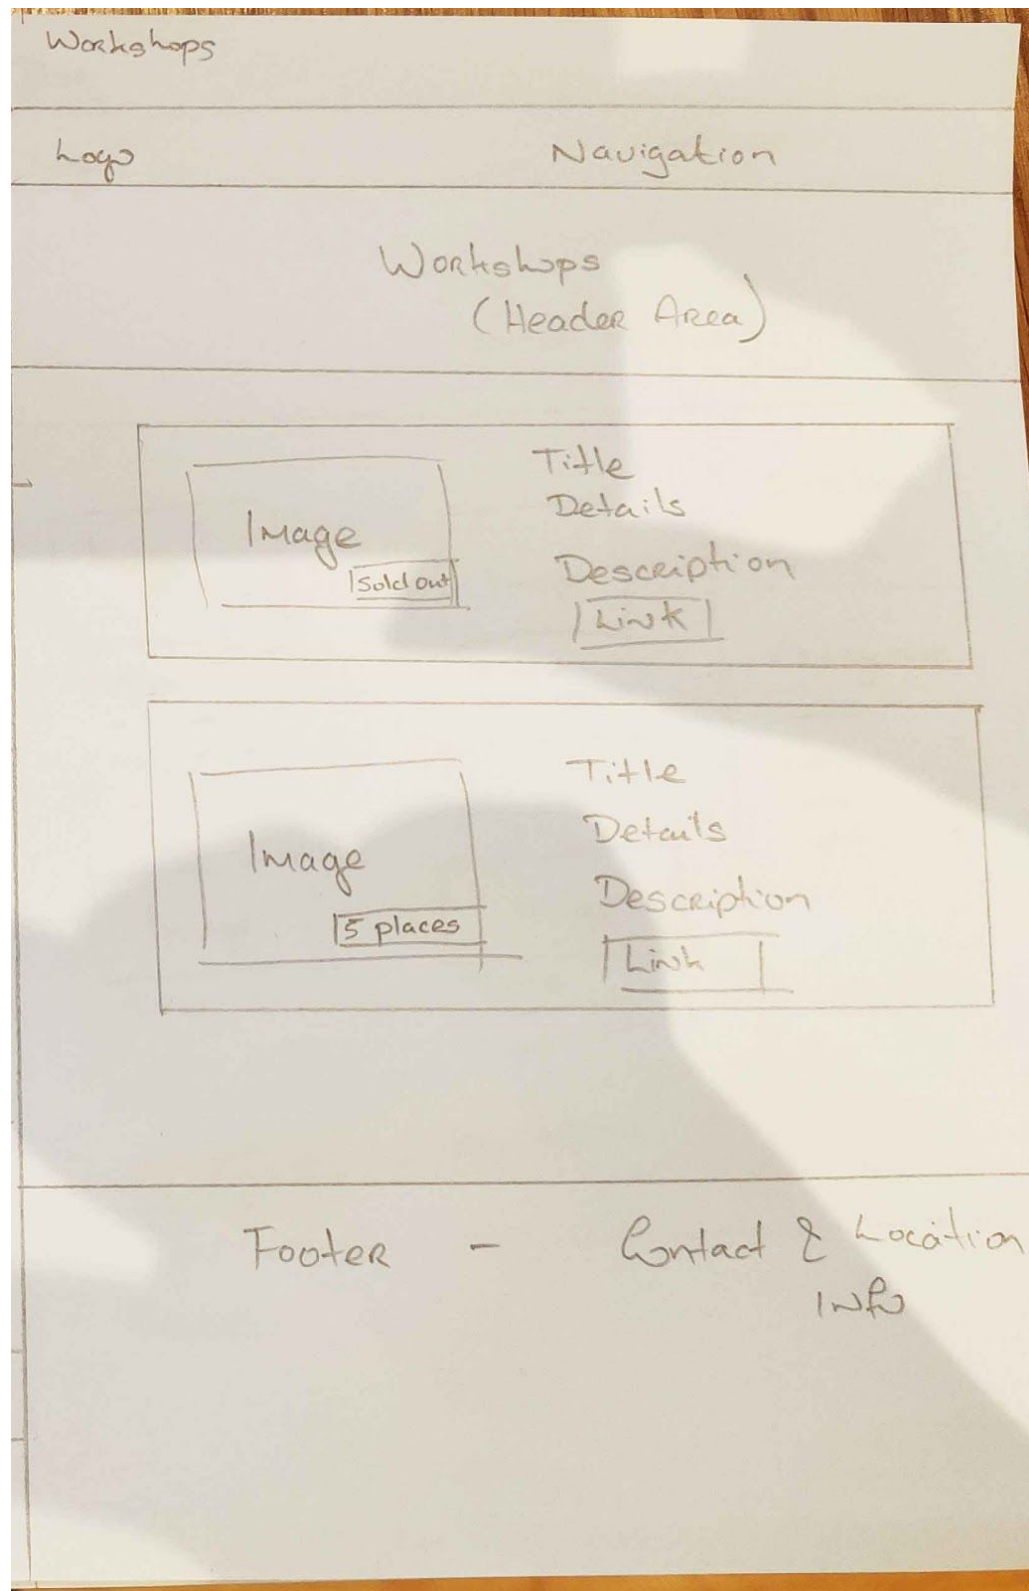

Super Users should have the ability:

- Add Homepage slides through the admin dashboard and have some control over display ie published or draft, text position on slide
- Add products to the site, products have different fields based on product type
- View site orders via email notification and through the admin dashboard
- View customer details via the admin dashboard
- Add blog posts via both the front end and admin dashboard. Ability to edit existing posts. Ability to set post to draft to remove from site. Ability to delete the post.
- View comments that are submitted to the site and approve comments to display them on the site.
- Receive contact forms via email from users of the site.
- Receive payments for product purchased
